

Honorable John C. Coughenour

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON
AT SEATTLE

MARK GERMACK DDS, individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated,

Plaintiffs,

vs.

THE DENTISTS INSURANCE COMPANY,

Defendants

No. 2:20-cv-00661-JCC

MOTION TO STRIKE AND DISMISS
ALL CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS IN PLAINTIFF’S COMPLAINT

Noted on Motion Calendar:
June 26, 2020

Oral Argument Requested

Defendant The Dentists Insurance Company (TDIC) submits the following Motion to Strike and Dismiss All Class Action Claims in Plaintiff’s Complaint.

I. INTRODUCTION

This is one of now hundreds of purported class action lawsuits being filed throughout the nation seeking class treatment for business interruption claims associated with the COVID-19 pandemic. Plaintiff Mark Germack, DDS alleges that this case is susceptible of national and state class treatment on the issue of whether coverage exists for business interruption caused by the COVID-19 pandemic and the amount of damages that each purported class member may be entitled to recover against TDIC.

1 Plaintiff alleges that TDIC wrongfully denied coverage under the Businessowners
2 Property Coverage Part in his TDIC Policy, which provides the following relevant coverages:

- 3 • Business Income
- 4 • Extra Expense
- 5 • Extended Business Income
- 6 • Civil Authority¹

7 Plaintiff alleges that he is entitled to declaratory judgment finding coverage for himself
8 and all purported class members. He further alleges a cause of action for breach of contract and 9 seeks money damages on behalf of himself and all purported class members.

10 Because these are highly individualized inquiries that will depend on the individual facts 11 of each insured's coverage situation and lost business income, this case is wholly unsuitable for 12 class treatment. Moreover, in light of the differing manner in which various states and 13 municipalities have limited the practice of dentistry and the differing legal standards for the 14 construction of insurance policies in each jurisdiction that may be implicated by a national class 15 action, this case is not legally suitable for class treatment.

16 Based on the allegations of the Complaint, Plaintiff cannot meet his burden of 17 commonality or typicality as required by FRCP 23(a). Moreover, although Plaintiff's Complaint
18 (Dkt. at 1) purports to be seeking class certification under each sub-paragraph of Rule 23(b) –
19 FRCP 23(b)(1), (2), and (3) – the Complaint does not allege facts that make this matter suitable 20 for class treatment. The Complaint simply does not allege facts that would make class treatment 21 appropriate under Rule 23(b)(1). Class treatment under Rule 23(b)(2) is inappropriate as the 22 Complaint seeks primarily money damages. Finally, Plaintiff simply cannot meet his burden of 23 demonstrating predominance and superiority under Rule 23(b)(3).

¹ Where appropriate, these coverages will be referred to collectively as, "Business Interruption" coverage.

1 As a result, TDIC asks that the Court strike and dismiss all of the Class Allegations –
2 including those in the Plaintiff’s Prayer for Relief – from Plaintiff’s Complaint such that this 3 matter may proceed on Dr. Germack’s individual claims on their merits.

4 II. ALLEGATIONS IN PLAINTIFF’S COMPLAINT

5 Plaintiff alleges that “[d]ue to COVID-19 and state-ordered mandated closure,” he is 6 unable to provide dental services. Dkt. 1, p. 2. Plaintiff further alleges that he intended to rely 7 on his “business insurance” to keep his business operational during the COVID-19 crisis. Id.

8 Plaintiff’s Complaint then contains several general allegations indicating that TDIC
9 issued a Businessowners Property Coverage to the Plaintiff that contains the various Business
10 Interruption coverages. Dkt. 1, pp. 2-3.

11 Plaintiff then claims that in January of 2020, the United States saw its first cases of 12 persons infected by COVID-19, ultimately prompting Washington State Governor Jay Inslee to 13 issue a “Stay Home, Stay Safe” Order. Dkt. 1, p. 3. The Complaint alleges that the “Stay Home, 14 Stay Safe” Order required the closure of all non-essential businesses, “including Plaintiff’s 15 business.” Id.

16 Despite that allegation, Plaintiff’s Complaint then goes on to allege the following:

- 17 14. By order of Governor Inslee, dentists including Plaintiff 18 were prohibited from practicing dental services but for urgent and emergency procedures.
- 19 15. Governor Inslee’s “PROCLAMATION BY THE 20 GOVERNOR AMENDING PROCLAMATION 20-05: 20-21 24 Restrictions on Non Urgent Medical Procedures,” dated 22 March 19, 2020, also provides, in part:

23 WHEREAS, the health care person protective equipment supply chain in Washington State has been severely disrupted by the significant increased use of such equipment worldwide, such that there are now critical shortages of this equipment for health

1 care workers. To curtail the spread of the COVID-19
2 pandemic in Washington State and to protect our 3 health care workers as they provide health care
4 services, it is necessary to immediately prohibit all
5 hospitals, ambulatory surgery centers, and dental
6 orthodontic, and endodontic offices in Washington
7 State from providing health care services, procedures
8 and surgeries that require personal protective 9 equipment, which if delayed, are not anticipated to 10 cause harm to the patient within the next three 11 months.

12 Dkt. 1, pp. 3-4 (emphasis added).

13 Plaintiff admits that no COVID-19 virus has been detected on the insured premises. Dkt.
14 1, p. 4.

15 Plaintiff's Complaint then alleges that his property has suffered "direct physical loss or 16 damage" that is covered under the Business Interruption coverages and that TDIC has denied his 17 claim for benefits under those coverages. Dkt. 1, pp. 4-5. Plaintiff then goes on to define the 18 class that he is seeking to represent as follows:

19 25. The Classes and Subclasses that Plaintiff seeks to represent 20 are defined as:

21 A. Business Income Coverage Breach of Contract
22 Class: All persons and entities in the United States
23 insured under a TDIC policy with Business Income
Coverage who suffered a suspension of their business at the covered premises related to COVID-19 and/or orders issued by Governor Inslee, other Governors, and/or other civil authorities and whose Business Income claim has been denied by TDIC.

B. Business Income Coverage Breach of Contract
Washington Subclass: All persons and entities in the State of Washington insured under a TDIC policy with Business Income Coverage who suffered a suspension of their business at the covered premises related to COVID-19 and/or orders issued by Governor Inslee, and/or other civil authorities and

1 whose Business Income claim has been denied by
2 TDIC.

3 C. Business Income Coverage Declaratory Relief
4 Class: All persons and entities in the United States
5 insured under a TDIC policy with Business Income
6 Coverage who suffered a suspension of their
7 business at the covered premises related to COVID-
8 19 and/or orders issued by Governor Inslee, other
9 Governors, and/or other civil authorities.

10 D. Business Income Coverage Declaratory Relief
11 Washington Subclass: All persons and entities in the 12 State of Washington insured under a TDIC policy
13 with Business Income Coverage who suffered a
14 suspension of their business at the covered premises
15 related to COVID-19 and/or orders issued by 16 Governor Inslee, and/or other civil authorities.

17 Dkt. 1, p. 5.

18 Plaintiff goes on in sub-paragraphs E.-P. to identify additional national and state classes
19 and sub-classes for Declaratory Relief and Breach of Contract under the Extra Expense, Extended 20 Business Income, and Civil Authority coverages. Id. at pp. 5-8.

21 Plaintiff then includes a list of what are self-servingly described as common issues 22 supporting commonality and predominance as well as several other conclusory statements and 23 legal conclusions relating to the applicability of the various Rule 23 factors for class treatment.

Dkt. 1, pp. 8-11.

Finally, at page twelve (12) of Plaintiff's Complaint, Plaintiff asserts a cause of action brought on behalf of all purported classes and subclasses seeking Declaratory Judgment under 28 U.S.C. §2201. Dkt. 1, p. 12. Supporting this claim, Plaintiff purports to seek the following:

38. Plaintiff seeks a declaratory judgment declaring that Plaintiff's and class members losses and expenses resulting from the interruption of their business are covered by the Policy.

1 39. Plaintiff seeks a declaratory judgment declaring that TDIC
2 is responsible for timely and fully paying all such claims.

3 Id.

4 Plaintiff then asserts – on behalf of all classes and subclasses – a cause of action for 5 Breach of Contract. Dkt. 1, pp. 12-13. Plaintiff’s allegations regarding breach of contract are 6 summarized in the last two paragraphs of that section.

7 45. Denying coverage for the claim is a breach of the insurance 8 contract.

9 46. Plaintiff is harmed by the breach of the insurance contract by 10 TDIC.

11 Id.

12 Plaintiff then states his Prayer for Relief, including a judicial declaration of coverage for 13 all losses and expenses resulting from the interruption of Plaintiff’s business due to COVID-19
14 and/or orders issues by Governor Inslee or other authorities. Dkt. 1, p. 13. The Prayer for Relief 15 also seeks the following:

16 2. A declaratory judgment that the defendant is responsible for 17 timely and fully paying all such losses.

18 3. Damages.

19 Id.

20 Based on a plain reading of Plaintiff’s Complaint, Plaintiff is asking this Court to take 21 jurisdiction over every insurance claim submitted to TDIC for Business Interruption coverage
22 caused by the COVID-19 outbreak for which TDIC has denied coverage for any reason. Plaintiff 23 is then asking this Court to enter a blanket ruling that coverage should have been extended to each and every claim regardless of the law of the jurisdiction where each claim originated.
Plaintiff is then asking this Court to award monetary damages to each insured, without any regard

1 for how the Court could possibly make such an award without individually evaluating the 2 financial records of each insured.

3 Based on this Complaint, Plaintiff's class allegations should be stricken.

4 III. LEGAL ANALYSIS

5 A. Legal Standard for Consideration of a Motion to Dismiss or Strike Class Allegations 6 Based on the Pleadings

7 The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure expressly contemplate motions to dismiss or strike
8 class allegations under Rule 23(d)(1)(D). To survive this type of motion, a plaintiff must plead
9 facts sufficient to demonstrate that all the prerequisites of Rule 23(a) are met, as well as facts
10 showing a class action is maintainable under Rule 23(b). See, e.g., Hanon v. Dataproducts Corp., 11 976 F.2d 497, 508 (9th Cir. 1992). Moreover, Rule 23(b)(3) requires that "questions of law or 12 fact common to class members predominate over any questions affecting only individual
13 members, and that a class action is superior to other available methods for fairly and efficiently
14 adjudicating the controversy." Rule 23(b)(3). When a complaint fails to plead the minimum 15 facts necessary to satisfy all these Rule 23 prerequisites, then courts readily dismiss or strike the 16 class action allegations. See Grundmeyer v. Allstate Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co., 2015 U.S. Dist.
17 LEXIS 180693, *1 (W.D. Wash. Sept. 29, 2015).

18 In Grundmeyer, the Honorable Robert Lasnik detailed the Court's legal standard for 19 considering class allegations on the pleadings as follows:

20 Because "Rule 23 does not set forth a mere pleading standard" (Wal-21 Mart Stores, Inc. v. Dukes, 564 U.S. 338, 131 S. Ct. 2541, 2551, 180 22 L. Ed. 2d 374 (2011)), the Court presumes that defendant is 23 challenging the adequacy of the pleadings under Fed. R. Civ. P. 12 rather than putting the class certification issue before the Court under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23. See Vinole v. Countrywide Home Loans, Inc., 571 F.3d 935, 941 (9th Cir. 2009). The question, therefore, is whether the allegations in the First Amended Complaint state
"plausible" grounds for class certification or whether they are so

1 conclusory or formulaic that they should be disregarded. Bell Atl.
2 Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570, 127 S. Ct. 1955, 167 L. Ed.
3 2d 929 (2007). All well-pleaded allegations are presumed to be true,
4 with all reasonable inferences drawn in favor of plaintiff. In re
5 Fitness Holdings Int'l, Inc., 714 F.3d 1141, 1144-45 (9th Cir. 2013).
6 If the class allegations are legally or factually defective, however,
7 dismissal is appropriate. Shroyer v. New Cingular Wireless Servs., 8 622 F.3d 1035, 1041 (9th Cir. 2010).

9 Grundmeyer, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 180693, *3.

10 As the Supreme Court has noted, “[s]ometimes the issues are plain enough from the pleadings
11 to determine whether the interests of absent parties are fairly encompassed within the named plaintiffs 12 claim.” Gen. Tel. Co. of Southwest v. Falcon, 457 U.S. 147, 160 (1982).

13 The 9th Circuit Court of Appeals decisions on striking class allegations are in accord:

14 Although in some cases a district court should allow discovery to aid
15 the determination of whether a class action is maintainable, the plaintiff
16 bears the burden of advancing a prima facie showing that the class
17 action requirements of Fed. R. Civ. P. 23 are satisfied or that discovery 18 is likely to produce substantiation of the class allegations. Absent such 19 a showing, a trial court’s refusal to allow class discovery is not an abuse 20 of discretion.

21 Mantolete v. Bolger, 767 F.2d 1416, 1424 (9th Cir. 1985).

22 Plaintiff may take the position that the Court should not rule on this motion due to the 23 fact that this action is related to a matter filed with the Panel for Multi-District Litigation and there is a motion to transfer and consolidate pending. However, while that motion is pending, this Court retains jurisdiction and should not delay the case due to the MDL Panel.

During the pendency of a motion (or show cause order) for transfer, however, the court in which the action was filed retains jurisdiction over the case.

The transferor court should not... automatically postpone rulings on pending motions, or generally suspend further proceedings. When notified of the filing of a motion for transfer, therefore, matters such as motions to dismiss or to remand, raising issues unique to the particular case, may be particularly appropriate for resolution before the Panel acts on the motion to transfer.

1 Manual for Complex Litigation (Fourth) § 20.131; *See also, Allen v. Bayer Corp. (In re :
2 Phenylpropanolamine (PPA) Prods. Liab. Litig.)*, 460 F.3d 1217 (2006).

3 B. Plaintiff's Class Allegations Fail on the Pleadings

4 The class action is “an exception to the usual rule that litigation is 5 conducted by and on behalf of the individual named parties only.”
6 Califano v. Yamasaki, 442 U.S. 682, 700-701, 99 S. Ct. 2545, 61 L.
7 Ed. 2d 176 (1979). In order to justify a departure from that rule, “a 8 class representative must be part of the class and 'possess the same 9 interest and suffer the same injury' as the class members.” *East Tex.
10 Motor Freight System, Inc. v. Rodriguez*, 431 U.S. 395, 403, 97 S.
11 Ct. 1891, 52 L. Ed. 2d 453 (1977) (quoting Schlesinger v. Reservists 12 Comm. to Stop the War, 418 U.S. 208, 216, 94 S. Ct. 2925, 41 L.
13 Ed. 2d 706 (1974)). Rule 23(a) ensures that the named plaintiffs are 14 appropriate representatives of the class whose claims they wish to 15 litigate. The Rule's four requirements--numerosity, commonality, 16 typicality, and adequate representation--“effectively 'limit the class 17 claims to those fairly encompassed by the named plaintiff's claims.'

18 Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Dukes, 564 U.S. 338, 348-349, 131 S. Ct. 2541, 2550, 180 L. Ed. 2d
19 374, 388-389, 2011 U.S. LEXIS 4567, *16-18, 79 U.S.L.W. 4527, 112 Fair Empl. Prac. Cas.
20 (BNA) 769, 161 Lab. Cas. (CCH) P35,919, 94 Empl. Prac. Dec. (CCH) P44, 193, 79 Fed. R.
21 Serv. 3d (Callaghan) 1460, 22 Fla. L. Weekly Fed. S 1167.

22 Class certification is appropriate only where the named Plaintiff has demonstrated the 23 numerosity, commonality, typicality, and adequacy of representation requirements of Rule 23(a) as well as at least one of the requirements listed in Rule 23(b). Grundmeyer, 2015 U.S. Dist.
LEXIS 180693, *3.

As is discussed herein, Plaintiff's class allegations are deficient under both Rule 23(a) and 23(b).

1. Plaintiff Cannot Establish Commonality or Typicality Under FRCP 23(a).

Plaintiff generally alleges that common questions predominate over individual issues and then provides a list of nine (9) allegedly common questions. Dkt. 1, pp. 9-10. However, a close review of Plaintiff's questions reveals that those questions do not satisfy the commonality

1 requirements of Rule 23(a). In addressing the commonality requirement, Justice Scalia remarked 2 as follows:

3 The crux of this case is commonality--the rule requiring a plaintiff 4 to show that "there are questions of law or fact common to the 5 class." Rule 23(a)(2). That language is easy to misread, since "[a]ny competently crafted class complaint literally raises common 'questions.'"

6 . . .

Commonality requires the plaintiff to demonstrate that the class members "have suffered the same injury," Falcon, supra, at 157, 102 S. Ct. 2364, 72 L. Ed. 2d 740. This does not mean merely that they have all suffered a violation of the same provision of law.

8 . . .

Their claims must depend upon a common contention--for example, 9 the assertion of discriminatory bias on the part of the same supervisor. That common contention, moreover, must be of such a 10 nature that it is capable of classwide resolution--which means that determination of its truth or falsity will resolve an issue that is 11 central to the validity of each one of the claims in one stroke.

12 "What matters to class certification . . . is not the raising of 13 common 'questions' -- even in droves -- but, rather, the capacity of a classwide proceeding to generate common answers apt to drive the resolution of the litigation.
14 Dissimilarities within the proposed class are what have the potential to impede the generation of common answers."

15 Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 564 U.S. at 350 (quoting, ARTICLE: CLASS CERTIFICATION IN THE 16 AGE OF AGGREGATE PROOF, 84 N.Y.U.L. Rev. 97).

17 As the Supreme Court noted in Dukes, any competently pled class action complaint will 18 contain allegations of common questions. Here, Plaintiff has raised multiple questions that he 19 purports to be common, if not in "droves" then at least as any competently drafted complaint 20 might. However, the question of commonality is not in common questions, but the ability for 21 those questions to generate common answers.

1 This is simply not a case where common answers might be identified for the proposed
2 class. The lack of ability to achieve common answers is no more stark than in Plaintiff's common
3 question H., which asks:

4 Whether because of Defendant's conduct, Plaintiff and the class
5 members have suffered damages; and if so, the appropriate amount thereof; . . .

6 Dkt. 1, p. 10.

7 There is simply no way that the Court can determine the amount of damages that each 8 dentist insured by TDIC suffered as a result of the COVID-19 related partial closures without an 9 individual assessment of the complete financial records of each individual dentist/insured. The 10 factors that the Court would have to consider for each dentist/insured are too numerable to fully 11 describe herein, but would certainly include at least all of the following:

- 12 • Each dentist/insured's operational capacity and revenue and overhead projections for 13 March to May 2020.
- 14 • Each dentist/insured's historical revenue and overhead for the March to May time period as compared to other months in the calendar year.
- 15 • Each dentist/insured's patient roster in March 2020, including the anticipated rate of 16 adding/losing patient base during the March to May 2020 period.
- 17 • The amount of revenue that each dentist/insured was able to generate to mitigate their damages through the performance of emergency procedures.

18 Obviously, there cannot be common answers to the damages question. It is axiomatic 19 that in the practice of dentistry, there will be practitioners with varying levels of revenue and 20 expenses. Some dentist/insureds may be very busy with multiple clinics in multiple locations 21 while other dentist/insureds may operate very modest practices. Some dentists may historically 22 take a sabbatical from their practices during the early springtime, such that they have no damages
23

1 whatsoever related to COVID-19. These individual issues predominate and cannot support any 2 claim for commonality or typicality under Rule 23(a).

3 The damages question presumes, though, that the Court would even get to that issue. The 4 first seven purportedly common questions offered by Plaintiff are all essentially the single issue
5 of whether there is coverage available to the dentist/insured class for closures or partial closures
6 due to COVID-19 and the governmental response thereto. For a variety of reasons, there can be 7 no common answer to this question on a class-wide basis.

8 For instance, under settled Washington law, it is the insured's burden to prove entitlement
9 to coverage in the first instance. See, e.g., McDonald v. State Farm Fire and Cas. Co., 119 Wn.
10 2d 724, 731, 837 P.2d 1000, 1003-04 (1992). So, for each and every class member's claim, 11 Plaintiff would have to prove that the efficient proximate cause of their loss is covered.

12 By its own terms, the efficient proximate cause rule operates when 13 an "insured risk" or covered peril sets into motion a chain of 14 causation which leads to an uncovered loss. If the efficient 15 proximate cause of the final loss is a covered peril, then the loss is 16 covered under the policy. In chain of causation cases, the efficient 17 proximate cause rule is properly applied after (1) a determination 18 of which single act or event is the efficient proximate cause of the 19 loss and (2) a determination that the efficient proximate cause of 20 the loss is a covered peril.

21 McDonald, 119 Wn.2d 724 (1992) (internal citations omitted).

22 However, not every state follows the efficient proximate cause rule. Some states will 23 assess coverage under a concurrent cause rule. Allison v. Fire Ins. Exch., 98 S.W.3d 227, 258-
259 (2002); Wallach v. Rosenberg, 527 So. 2d 1386, 1388 (Fl. Ct. App. 1988).

Moreover, in some jurisdictions, but not all jurisdictions, the Courts apply an overriding doctrine of reasonable expectations, which "supplements, but does not replace, traditional principles of policy interpretation." Coleman-Domanoski v. St. Paul Guardian Ins. Co., 2020

1 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 73027 (D.Colo.); see also, W. Heritage Ins. Co. v. Coffman Welding & Metal
2 Work, 2020 Ky. App. Unpub. LEXIS 256; Montrose Chemical Corp. of California v. Superior
3 Court, 9 Cal. 5th 215 (2020).

4 Moreover, even though a majority of the states have adopted what each state calls an 5 “efficient proximate cause” doctrine, there are innumerable nuances in how each state applies its 6 chosen causation rule based on the development of each state’s case law over the years. Compare
7 Cornhusker Cas. Co. v. Farmers Mut. Ins. Co., 268 Neb. 168, 177, 680 N.W.2d 595 (2004)
8 (“[T]he efficient proximate cause rule allows recovery for a loss ‘caused by a combination of a 9 covered and an excluded risk only if the covered risk was the efficient proximate cause of the 10 loss, meaning that the covered risk set the other causes in motion which, in an unbroken sequence, 11 produced the result for which recovery is sought.’”) with W. Nat’l Mut. Ins. Co. v. Univ. of N.D., 12 643 N.W.2d 4, 14-15 and 18 (N.D. 2002) (approving the following jury instruction: “The 13 efficient proximate cause is a peril or risk that sets other causes in motion. It is not necessarily 14 the last act in a chain of events, nor necessarily is it the triggering cause. To determine the 15 efficient proximate cause you must look to the quality of the links and the chain of causation.
16 The efficient proximate cause is considered the predominating cause of the loss. By definition 17 there can only be one efficient proximate cause; i.e., predominant cause of the loss.”) and 18 Simonetti v. Selective Ins. Co., 859 A.2d 694, 700 (N.J. Super. Ct. App. 2004) (“And with regard 19 to sequential causes of loss, our courts have determined that an insured deserves coverage where 20 the included cause of loss is either the first or last step in the chain of causation which leads to 21 the loss,” relying in part on 5 Appleman, Insurance Law & Practice, § 3083 at 309-11 (1970));
22 see also Russell v. NGM Ins. Co., 170 N.H. 424, 438-439, 176 A.3d 196 (2017) (“The efficient
23 proximate cause is the risk that sets others in motion...Under the efficient proximate cause

1 doctrine, there is no coverage for an insured's loss when the efficient proximate cause of that loss
2 is an excluded peril.”).

3 Additionally, each state has its own unique set of statutes, public policy considerations
4 and insurance coverage philosophies. See, e.g., Or. Rev. St. 742.016 (limiting evidence allowed 5 to construe insurance policy); Rev. Code Wash. 48.01.030 (expressing public policy interests in 6 regard to insurance).

7 These different laws, standards and tests will necessarily require different discovery,
8 evidence and arguments, and will likely yield different results. Based on the numerous legal 9 standards that the Plaintiff is inviting this Court to apply to the facts of each individual
10 dentist/insured’s situation, the commonality and typicality elements of Rule 23(a) are impossible 11 for the Plaintiff to establish in this matter.

12 Moreover, setting aside the legal doctrines associated with policy construction and 13 interpretation, the Court will also need to address the specific coverage issues relating to Business
14 Interruption coverage from each jurisdiction. In Washington, Business Interruption coverage
15 will be controlled by Keetch v. Mut. of Enumclaw Ins. Co., 66 Wn. App. 208, 831 P.2d 784
16 (1992). In Keetch, the Court of Appeals of the State of Washington held that the “necessary 17 suspension of operations” required by the policy mandates a complete suspension of operations 18 rather than a mere limitation on operations.

19 Mutual cites substantial authority in support of its position. Ramada
20 Inn Ramogreen, Inc. v. Travelers Indem. Co. of Am., 835 F.2d 812 21 (11th Cir. 1988) (decrease in hotel's room occupancy due to 22 restaurant fire was not covered under business interruption policy);
23 National Children's Expositions Corp. v. Anchor Ins. Co., 279 F.2d 428, 83 A.L.R.2d 879 (2d Cir. 1960) (unprecedented snowstorm reduced attendance at exposition; no partial business interruption loss within terms of policy); Pacific Coast Eng'g Co. v. St. Paul Fire

1 coverage granted for only 2-day period plant closed); Hotel
2 Properties, Ltd. v. Heritage Ins. Co. of Am., 456 So. 2d 1249 (Fla.
3 Dist. Ct. App. 1984) (hotel claimed occupancy of rooms decreased 4 by closing of restaurant due to fire; no coverage provided because 5 no actual suspension [6] of hotel's business), review denied, 464
6 So. 2d 555 (Fla. 1985); Rothenberg v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 115 Ga.
7 App. 26, 153 S.E.2d 447 (1967) (no business interruption coverage 8 for loss of profits due to burglary); Howard Stores Corp. v.
9 Foremost Ins. Co., 82 A.D.2d 398, 441 N.Y.S.2d 674 (1981)
10 (business interruption coverage denied to insured whose store was 12 operation), aff'd, 56 N.Y.2d 991, 439 N.E.2d 397, 453 N.Y.S.2d 682 13 (1982).

14 We find these decisions persuasive.

15 . . .

16 We find further support for Mutual's position in paragraph 4 of the 17 endorsement:

18 It is a condition of this insurance that if the insured could 19 reduce the loss resulting from the interruption of business:

20 a. by complete or partial resumption of operation of the 21 property herein described, whether damaged or not . . .

22

23 such reduction shall be taken into account in arriving at the amount of loss hereunder.

By requiring the insured to mitigate the loss and resume operations as soon as practicable, the endorsement implies that a business interruption loss has forced the insured to cease business operations.

Keetch, 66 Wn. App. at 212.

As the Keetch Court thoroughly described, a number of other states interpret these coverages as requiring a complete cessation of operations rather than a mere limitation in operations. As Plaintiff's Complaint in this matter makes clear, the COVID-19 pandemic and Governor Inslee's "Stay Safe, Stay Home" Order never required that dentist/insureds in the State of Washington completely cease all operations.

1 of all non-emergent care, there are nuances to each state’s orders that make class treatment
2 impossible. For instance, the applicable “period of restoration” for each state will differ based 3 on when each state issued its stay-at-home orders and when each state will allow for a return to 4 operations.

5 It is worth noting as well, that certain counties and even cities within multiple states have 6 adopted their own social distancing protocols that affected the practice of dentistry.

7 By contrast, many states have not issued any orders preventing the practice of dentistry, 8 but have issued “recommendations” concerning compliance with CDC or other regulatory 9 guidelines (HI, MA, ND, SD, SC, WY). Appendix A. Based on the purported common
10 questions posed, as well as the definitions and sub-definitions of the proposed classes, 11 dentist/insureds in the class who voluntarily limited their practices without any governmental 12 mandate might not be entitled to coverage. Certainly, the Court would need to reconcile the 13 difference in how each state has treated COVID-19 vis-à-vis the practice of dentistry in order to 14 answer the purported common questions.

15 Finally, even if Plaintiff could establish that this Court can somehow answer the question
16 of whether Business Interruption coverage exists under the TDIC Policies for all dentist/insureds 17 in every jurisdiction due to COVID-19 and the governmental response thereto—and even if the 18 Court could somehow answer the question of how much each dentist/insured is entitled to recover 19 on a class-wide basis—the inquiry would still not be over.

20 For each dentist/insured, the Court would also have to determine and address any other 21 coverage defenses that may exist. In Dr. Germack’s case, he never formally submitted a claim 22 to TDIC (he spoke to his broker, but did not submit a claim pre-suit) and then did not respond to 23 TDIC’s post-suit request for information. Dkt. 8. As a result, in Dr. Germack’s specific case,

1 the TDIC cooperation clause is potentially implicated. Downie v. State Farm Fire & Casualty
2 Company, 84 Wn. App. 577, 929 P.2d 484 (1997); Tran v. State Farm Fire and Cas. Co., 136
3 Wn.2d 214, 961 P.2d 358 (1998); Pilgrim v. State Farm, 89 Wn. App. 712, 950 P.2d 479 (1997);
4 Keith v. Allstate Indemnity Co., 105 Wn. App. 251, 19 P.3d 443 (2001).

5 Other insureds may have submitted COVID-19 related Business Interruption claims only 6 to then misrepresent or conceal material facts about their claim, thus resulting in an independent
7 basis for denial. Mut. of Enumclaw Ins. Co. v. Cox, 110 Wn.2d 643, 757 P.2d 499 (1988);
8 Johnson v. Allstate Ins. Co., 126 Wn. App. 510, 108 P.3d 1273 (2005). Others may have 9 submitted claims even though their policies were cancelled due to pre-pandemic failure to pay 10 premium. Any number of individualized coverage issues may be implicated and will 11 predominate.

12 Based on the foregoing, TDIC submits that Plaintiff simply cannot possibly meet his 13 burden of establishing commonality and typicality under Rule 23(a). Because this failure is 14 preclusive of class treatment of the Plaintiff's claims, the Court need not go further. However,
15 even if Plaintiff could somehow meet his burden on Rule 23(a), he would still need to prove that 16 the claims are suitable for class treatment under one of the elements of Rule 23(b). Grundmeyer, 17 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 180693 at *1.

18 2. Plaintiff Cannot Obtain Class Certification Under Rule 23(b)(1)

19 Rule 23(b)(1) certification would be entirely inappropriate in this matter.

20 In contrast to class actions brought under subdivision (b)(3), in cases
21 brought under subdivision (b)(1), Rule 23 does not provide for absent
22 class members to receive notice and to exclude themselves from class 23 membership as a matter of right.

Ortiz v. Fibreboard Corp., 527 U.S. 815, 119 S. Ct. 2295, 144 L. Ed. 2d 715, 1999 U.S. LEXIS 4373, 67 U.S.L.W. 4632, 99 Cal. Daily Op. Service 4953, 99 Daily Journal DAR 6383, 43 Fed.
R. Serv. 3d (Callaghan) 691, 1999 Colo. J. C.A.R. 3596, 12 Fla. L. Weekly Fed. S 491

1 This is not the type of case in which the Court could certify a class under this rule thereby
2 locking all potential class members into the class without the option to opt out.

3 Rule 26(b)(1) contains two sub-paragraphs, neither of which implicate class certification in 4 this matter.

5 Rule 23(b)(1)(A) authorizes certification only when separate actions would establish 6 incompatible standards of conduct for the party opposing the class. Finding that class certification
7 under this rule was “untenable” in the context of a suit for money damages following an airplane
8 crash, the Ninth Circuit held as follows:

9 Admittedly, separate actions could reach inconsistent results and 10 inconsistent resolutions of the same question of law might establish 11 "incompatible standards of conduct" in the sense of different legal 12 rules governing the same conduct. But subdivision (b)(1)(A) was 13 not intended to permit class actions simply when separate actions 14 would raise the same question of law. To hold otherwise would be 15 to render superfluous the detailed provisions of subdivision (b)(3).
16 Although the two subdivisions do not present mutually exclusive 17 tests, neither does one entirely displace the other. We cannot read 18 subdivision (b)(1)(A) so broadly that subdivision (b)(3) applies only 19 to class actions already maintainable under subdivision (b)(1)(A).

20 Instead, the "incompatible standards of conduct" of subdivision 21 (b)(1)(A) must be interpreted to be incompatible standards of 22 conduct required of the defendant in fulfilling judgments in separate 23 actions. See La Mar, supra, 489 F.2d at 466. In this case, a judgment that defendants were liable to one plaintiff would not require action inconsistent with a judgment that they were not liable to another plaintiff. By paying the first judgment, defendants could act consistently with both judgments. The declaratory relief sought by plaintiffs does not alter this conclusion. They seek only a declaration of liability. They have not specified, and we cannot discern, what obligations such a declaration would impose upon defendants that a judgment for damages would not.

21 McDonnell Douglas Corp. v. United States Dist. Court for Cent. Dist., 523 F.2d 1083, 1086 22 (1975).

23 As is clearly set forth in Plaintiff’s Complaint, this matter seeks recovery of money damages, making class treatment under Rule 23(b)(1)(A) entirely inappropriate.

1 Similarly, there is no basis for class certification under Rule 23(b)(1)(B), which allows
2 for class treatment if separate actions, might as a practical matter be dispositive of the interests
3 of other members not parties to the adjudication or substantially impair or alter their ability to 4 protect their interests. McDonnell Douglas Corp. 523 F.2d at 1086, 1975 U.S. App. LEXIS
5 14531, *3-4. The United States Supreme Court’s treatment of sub-paragraph (b)(1)(B) limits its 6 application to certain “classic” limited fund scenarios that appear in the Advisory Committee’s
7 comments and warned against any more “adventurous application” of the Rule. See Ortiz, 527
8 U.S. at 833-836 (citing examples such as claimants to trust assets, proceeds of a ship sale, and 9 company assets in liquidation.)

10 This is not a limited fund case and the refusal to certify a mandatory class will not impair 11 the rights of any non-participant in this action. Dr. Germack’s claim for coverage can – and 12 should – be determined on its own merits.

13 3. Plaintiff Cannot Obtain Certification Under Rule 23(b)(2)

14 The Advisory Committee note to Rule 23(b)(2) states that “the subdivision does not extend 15 to cases in which the appropriate final relief relates exclusively or predominantly to money damages.”
16 See also Nelsen v. King County, 895 F.2d 1248, 1255 (9th Cir. 1990) (“Class certification under Fed.
17 R. Civ. P. 23(b)(2) is not appropriate where the relief requested relates exclusively or predominately 18 to money damages”).

19 The Supreme Court made this principle clear in Dukes

20 We also conclude that respondents' claims for backpay were 21 improperly certified under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(b)(2).
22 Our opinion in Ticor Title Ins. Co. v. Brown, 511 U.S. 117, 121, 114
23 S. Ct. 1359, 128 L. Ed. 2d 33 (1994) (per curiam), expressed serious doubt about whether claims for monetary relief may be certified under that provision. We now hold that they may not, at least where (as here) the monetary relief is not incidental to the injunctive or declaratory relief.

1 Dukes, 564 U.S. 338, 360, 131 S. Ct. 2541, 2557, 180 L. Ed. 2d 374, 396.

2 Although the Plaintiff in the instant action did assert a claim for declaratory relief, that 3 claim is incidental to the individual claims for damages. In fact, the request for declaratory relief
4 is a request for a finding of insurance coverage, which if granted would result in the payment of 5 insurance proceeds – in other words, money damages.

6 4. Plaintiff Cannot Obtain Class Certification Under Rule 23(b)(3)

7 Rule 23(b)(3) certification is available only where, “questions of law or fact common to 8 the members of the class predominate over any questions affecting only individual members, and 9 that a class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of 10 the controversy.” FRCP 23(b)(3). Plaintiff cannot establish the predominance and superiority 11 requirements of Rule 23(b)(3) because individual issues predominate.

12 In discussing these issues in the context of a proposed class of insurance claimants, the 13 Court in Grundmeyer held as follows:

14 If the class allegations are legally or factually defective ...
15 dismissal is appropriate.... Plaintiff has not alleged facts that give 16 rise to a plausible inference that the common questions he 17 identifies will predominate over individual issues or that a class 18 action is superior to other methods of resolving this controversy.
19 To the extent there are common issues regarding the nature of the 20 perils excluded from coverage and the application of the efficient 21 proximate cause rule, their resolution in plaintiff's favor will not 22 resolve any class member's claim. For Allstate to be liable for 23 damages, a class member would need to further show (i) that the claim was not denied on any other ground (or, if it were, that the ground does not bar coverage) and (ii) his or her quantum of damages. These issues are not susceptible to common resolution, and plaintiff does not suggest a method for resolving the questions that would minimize the need for individual judicial determinations.

Grundmeyer, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 180693, *7-8.

1 As detailed above, this case has even more individualized issues than in Grundmeyer,
2 because the resolution of whether any particular insured is entitled to coverage will be determined
3 by varying legal standards for policy interpretation, based on differing facts and involving 4 individual damages.

5 Like in Grundmeyer, the Western District has consistently refused to certify classes under 6 23(b)(3) in insurance coverage disputes where individual issues and individual damages
7 predominate. See, Franklin v. Gov't Emples. Ins. Co., 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 125625, 2011 WL
8 5166458; Hovenkotter v. Safeco Ins. Co., 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 112645, 2010 WL 3984828.

9 Questions of individual damage calculations will inevitably 10 overwhelm questions common to the class.

11 Comcast Corp. v. Behrend, 569 U.S. 27, 34, 133 S. Ct. 1426, 1433, 185 L. Ed. 2d 515, 522, 2013
12 U.S. LEXIS 2544, *14, 81 U.S.L.W. 4217, 2013-1 Trade Cas. (CCH) P78,316, 85 Fed. R. Serv.
3d (Callaghan) 118, 24 Fla. L. Weekly Fed. S 125, 57 Comm. Reg. (P & F) 1487, 2013 WL 1222646.

13 Individual issues predominate and there is not any credible argument that can be made to 14 the contrary. The determination of whether Dr. Germack is entitled to Business Interruption 15 coverage under Washington law, based on Washington's "Stay Home, Stay Safe" Order is an 16 inherently different inquiry than whether some other dentist/insured might be entitled to coverage
17 under the laws of their jurisdiction, based on the COVID-19 related orders or recommendations 18 of their jurisdiction.

19 Individual issues will also predominate when considering individual coverage issues that 20 are separate and apart from the mere question of whether the Business Interruption insuring 21 agreements are triggered. Where there are issues regarding the insured's cooperation or there are 22 misrepresentations or concealment of material facts or where the denial is based on a cancellation 23 of the policy for failure to pay a premium, individual issues will predominate. Any number of

1 issues ancillary to the actual insuring agreements themselves may be implicated for any particular 2 insured's situation.

3 Plaintiff cannot establish that class treatment of his claims might somehow be superior to 4 other methods of adjudicating this controversy.

5 This is not a case where each class member may be entitled to only 6 a few dollars, reducing the likelihood of individual litigation and 7 requiring collective adjudication in order to redress a wrong. Nor is 8 it a case in which resolution of the common issues will point to a 9 method for calculating or evaluating damages: the nature and scope 10 of the property damage each insured suffered is unknown and would 11 have to be the subject of discovery and individual adjudication. If a 12 class were certified, the class members would not long remain
13 "absent." Rather, they would have to participate in order to pursue 14 their damages, increasing "the likely difficulties in managing [the] 15 class action."

16 Grundmeyer, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 180693, *8-9.

17 As in Grundmeyer, this is not a case in which each class member would be entitled to only 18 a few dollars making individualized litigation of their claims prohibitive. Also, as in Grundmeyer, 19 this case suffers from the same management issues pertaining to the individual adjudication of 20 each class member's damages.

21 As a result, there is simply no basis to certify a class action under Rule 23(b)(3) in this 22 matter.

23 IV. CONCLUSION

Based on the foregoing, The Dentists Insurance Company asks that the Court Strike and Dismiss Plaintiff's Class Action Allegations.
